In this lecture, our expert presenter will explore the skills and competencies required for accountants over the next ten years. With the increasing trend for outsourcing of basic recording of transactions, there is a growing demand for accountants to be more strategic, use higher order cognitive skills to solve problems and to be effective communicators.

This session will work through evidence and the relative importance of key technical and non-technical skills for graduates of professional accounting programs to meet the challenge of the profession over the next decade.
